

Vicki waves Can Assist banner at conference

Can Assist executive director Emma Phillips and president Vicki Meyer with Member for Wagga Wagga Joe McGirr at the Livestock, Bulk & Rural Carriers Association conference.

Deniliquin's Vicki Meyer was wearing two hats when she attended the Livestock, Bulk & Rural Carriers Association conference in Wagga at the end of last week.

As well as attending in her role as CEO Deniliquin Freighters, Vicki was also wearing her volunteer hat.

CanAssist was chosen as the charity partner for the conference, and Vicki is the national president of the organisation.

“Some people might wonder what the bulk carriers and Can Assist have in common, but the two organisations have more in common than people think.,

“Both organisations are committed to work in the community, and they seek the same healthy and safety outcomes for members and those in need.

“Our presence there fit in well with the themes of healthy minds and supporting rural and regional communities.”

A donation was made to CanAssist by LBRCA after the two day conference, which ended Saturday.

Vicki said it will be distributed between regional NSW branched, head office in Sydney and Lilier Lodge, a cancer treatment and accommodation facility in Wagga.
