

NEW DIRECTOR PROFILES

FOUR (4) nominations have been received for the FOUR (4) Directors positions on the Cancer Patients Assistance Society of New South Wales Board in accordance with the company's Constitution. For the last 12 months these Four (4) nominations have each been serving as filling the casual vacancy in accordance with 11.1(b) of the Constitution.

Details of each candidate, supplied by each, for the position of Director is published herein:

Kym Bramich

With a career of over 20 years in the pharmaceutical industry, Kym has a deep understanding of the healthcare environment and its complexities in Australia. She is currently Head of Marketing and Communications for the Australian Genomic Cancer Medicine Centre, trading as Omico, a not-for-profit organisation focussed on improving outcomes for Australians with cancer by accelerating the use of precision oncology.

Previously, Kym has held several executive roles in large global companies and so brings significant experience in organisational leadership, creating and directing strategy, leading large businesses and teams, and building collaborative stakeholder relationships.

Kym continues to have a strong drive to positively impact the health of others. She is passionate about having a clear purpose, driving forward progress, and rising to challenges to do so.

With experience as a carer for close family members who have had a cancer diagnosis, Kym understands the burden to patients, carers and families that come with this. Kym is originally from Tasmania and is based in Sydney. She is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors and a member of Women on Boards.

Marcus Lewis

Marcus is the founder and managing Director of Sanctuary Media Group (SMG), a specialist strategic media planning and buying agency based in Surry Hills. Marcus launches SMG to specialise in working with NGOs in 2016 to help drive their fundraising and donor bases. SMG and Marcus work with 20+ NGOs in Australia and New Zealand.

Born in Birmingham UK Marcus has been working in Marketing, Media and Fundraising since 1995, he started his career in the UK with one of the largest Global advertising groups McCann Erickson before spending time with MediaVest and MediaCom in London and Manchester. He moved over to Australia with his family in 2011 to work with the leadership team at PHD Australia to help deliver their Analytics and Direct Response expertise.

Marcus and his family fell in love with NSW and Australia very soon after arriving in Sydney and they quickly decided to make it our permanent home. Outside of work he has worked with community sport in organisation and sponsorship duties and has done voluntary work with the Australian Direct Marketing Association.

Lynsey Reilly

Lynsey is a Leeton-based communications executive with over 20 years' of high-level, corporate, community and board experience, in Australia and abroad.

Lynsey is currently Group Manager Communications and Corporate Affairs for ASX listed Evolution Mining and previously Group Manager Marketing, Corporate Affairs for ASX listed, Murray Cod Australia and owner/director of Lynsey Reilly Communications.

Lynsey's particular specialties include governance and reporting, strategy formulation, communications and stakeholder management. She has over 20 years' experience in communications, marketing, public relations, media relations, event management, tourism marketing and sponsorship management.

A graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors Course, Lynsey is the proud recipient of two Public Relations Institute of Australia Golden Target Awards including 2009 Special Events Award and 2016 Australian co-Micro Agency of the Year.

Lynsey is also a cancer survivor who is passionate about helping people in need and broader regional communities.

Justine Turnbull

Justine has had a legal career spanning almost three decades during which Justine has amassed considerable specialist experience, particularly at executive level, advising on all types of workplace misconduct, including discrimination, bullying and harassment. As a founding partner at Seyfarth Shaw Australia and former partner at Herbert Smith Freehills, Justine advised private and public enterprises on national and global levels. Justine currently works as a workplace consultant conducting workplace investigations and culture reviews. She brings extensive experience advising on a wide range of workplace issues such as disciplinary and performance matters, employee hire and retention, pay practices and processes and workforce reductions.

Through her interaction and communication with employees at all organisational levels across countless industries, including financial services, media, gaming, retail, manufacturing, recruitment and property, Justine gained an acute understanding of the depth and scale of employment challenges faced by workplaces.

Justine is a current independent director of Pepper Money Ltd and Chair of the Remuneration & Nomination Committee. Justine is a former board member for Catholic Schools NSW/ACT, Access EAP and TAFE NSW where Justine has played instrumental roles in driving both commercial business success and rapid industry growth.

Justine and her husband spend their time between Sydney and Yass where she grew up.